

SPAGAD-1

Speech Acts in Grammar and Discourse: Syntactic and Semantic Modeling

The Leibniz-Zentrum Allgemeine Sprachwissenschaft (ZAS) in Berlin, www.leibniz-zas.de, organizes a three-day workshop on speech acts, October 30 – November 1, 2019. The workshop is funded by the ERC Project SPAGAD – Speech Acts in Grammar and Discourse. We would like to invite papers that discuss syntactic, semantic and pragmatic phenomena that are relevant for the way how speech acts should be represented in syntax or modeled in semantics. We are interested in different types of speech acts (assertions, questions, declarations, commands, promises, optatives, exclamatives, expressives etc.) in different languages, as well as categories like epistemic and evidential modality and speech-act modifiers. Indirect speech acts and the relation of speech acts to discourse phenomena are not the main focus of the current workshop.

There will be invited talks, as well as several slots and a poster session for submissions. Please submit anonymous abstracts, 2 pages with font Arial 11 pt. or similar, including bibliography, as pdf files until August 4, 2019, 23:59 to Easychair at <https://easychair.org/conferences/?conf=spagad1>

Program committee at ZAS:

Manfred Krifka, Friederike Buch, Marvin Schmitt, Tue Trinh, Hubert Truckenbrodt

Contact: krifka@leibniz-zas.de, subject line: SPAGAD-1

Invited talks (agreed):

Scott AnderBois, Brown University
Chris Barker, New York University
Regine Eckardt, Universität Konstanz
Martina Faller, University of Manchester
Hans-Martin Gärtner, Hungarian Academy of Science
Bart Geurts, Radboud University Nijmegen
Patrick Grosz, University of Oslo
Daniel Gutzmann, Universität Köln
Sven Lauer, Universität Konstanz
Lisa Matthewson, University of British Columbia
Sarah E. Murray, Cornell University
Sophie Repp, Universität Köln
Martina Wiltschko, ICREA, Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Barcelona
Rebecca Woods, University of Newcastle